

Thank you for downloading this FREE PRINTABLE from With the Huddleston's! Feel free to share this, but please do not try to sell or make changes to the document. I humbly ask that you not share the PDF for distribution beyond your family, but please link our blog so others know where to get this [and other] free printables!

For any questions, please contact Michelle at michelle@withthehuddlestons.com

To receive notifications of new published material, SUBSCRIBE on our website withthehuddlestons.com

Unit Study Topic:

Length of Study:

Start Date

End Date

Resources:

Materials needed:

Notes:

Unit Study Assignments

Subject: _____

Date: _____

Date: _____

Date: _____

Date: _____

Date: _____

Unit Study

Vocabulary Words

_____	_____
_____	_____
_____	_____
_____	_____
_____	_____
_____	_____
_____	_____
_____	_____
_____	_____
_____	_____
_____	_____

Notes:

Unit Study

Reading List

Title	Author	Subject

Notes:

Unit Study

Extra-Curricular Activities & Field Trips

Date	Activity <small>(and location if applicable)</small>	Topic/Subject

Notes:

Unit Study

Reflection

Concepts easily learned:

Concepts not easily learned and may need to revisit:

Favorite activities/concepts:

Future changes to consider (if any):

Get the most of this Unit Study Planner by doing the following:

- Print and keep your unit study plans in a planner dedicated specifically for unit studies. This allows for quick referral and later use.
- Print multiple copies of page 3 for how ever many subjects your unit study will use. For example, the All About Me (and My Family) unit study can span across several subjects, such as: Social Studies, Health, Math, Geography, etc. - so I would print at least 4 copies of page 3.
- At the end of the unit study, use the reflection page to take notes about things you may want to change when doing another unit study in the future.
- Have fun and allow versatility and changes to happen naturally!

Happy homeschooling, y'all!

Love, Michelle

withthehuddlestones.com